Statement on the use of mercury in electrical and electronic industry

Dear Customer,

The Minamata Convention on Mercury is a global treaty to protect human health and the environment from the adverse effects of mercury.

In the electrical and electronic industry, the RoHS directive restricts the presence of specific hazardous substances including mercury. Beckhoff Automation products comply with the RoHS Directive 2011/65/EU and the delegated RoHS-Directive (EU) 2015/863.

Confirmation of compliance with RoHS Directive 2011/65/EU is part of the respective declaration of conformity or product data sheet and is provided for each product on our website in the documentation and downloads section: www.beckhoff.com

Product specific information on SVHCs and RoHS exemptions are given in the Excel sheet "SVHC, SCIP and applicable RoHS exemptions for Beckhoff Automation Products" which is available on our website.

Best regards

Dr. Hatice Söyler
