Declaration on Persistent Organic Pollutants (POP)

Dear Customer,

The Persistent Organic Pollutants (POPs) Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1021 regulates substances which are subject to the global Stockholm Convention on Persistent Organic Pollutants within the European Union. Annex I of the POP Regulation lists the substances and limit value requirements for the prohibited substances.

Beckhoff Automation declares that substances regulated under the POP Regulation are not intentionally added at the production site of Beckhoff Automation. Based on our current level of knowledge and technical documentation from our suppliers, we can confirm that according to regulation (EU) 2019/1021, there are no persistent organic pollutants in our products.

POPs which are relevant for the electrical and electronics market are already regulated under relevant EU regulations (REACH) and directives (RoHS). Information on SVHCs, applicable RoHS exemptions and SCIP submission numbers can be found in the list "SVHC, SCIP and applicable RoHS exemptions for Beckhoff Automation Products" published on our website.

Best regards
